

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A broadcasting reception apparatus comprising an input section configured to receive a password 5 a registration section configured to allow a plurality of such passwords to be registered, a broadcasting reception section configured to have its starting controlled on the basis of a result of comparison between the password registered in the registration section and any password input through the input 10 section, a storage section configured to gain information relating to a reception history with the broadcasting reception section in a started state, and a control section configured to control setting contents, at a starting time of the broadcasting 15 reception section, on the basis of the information relating to the reception history stored in the storage section.